Hello,

I wanted to voice my opinion:

As a 20 year Mac user and a Apple investor I want you to know that I object that the settlement. Apple only has approximately 49% of school computer platforms and only 4% of total operating systems. If you were to allow Microsoft to "donate" as much as you are stating you will foster a new generation of computer users who will only use or become familiar with Microsoft's OS thus the monopoly continues. Please scale back your donation or ensure that Apple Computer is better represented in this settlement.

I would also like to add the following quote:

"There are two principal issues: the proposed penalty for Microsoft's violations is entirely prospective and the predictability of the penalty to effect a sufficient diminishment of Microsoft's anticompetitive behavior is completely inadequate, including being overly complex and to vague, especially in light of published comments by Microsoft CEO Steve Balmer after Microsoft's conviction that he does not even know what a monopoly is."

owiRegards
